Hi! I'm Pietro, i'm 16 years old and I live in Italy. My home is in the countryside and I live with my mom. My grandparents live in a town in the Italian eastern seaside, and I have two older brothers of which one lives in Milan and the other in Bruxelles. I really get along with my family and we rarely get into fights. I go to a scientific high school, like to travel and spend time with my friends, drawing and studying languages. I don't really prioritize sports, however I'm ok with them. My school ends before lunch but I spend my weekdays quite entirely studying, which is the habit of most Italian teenagers. Sometimes I hang out during the week, but mostly often only on Saturday evenings. I'd like to pursue more hobbies, however, I find school too demanding to dedicating more time to them: so as per now I just find some time to read, draw, go to the gym and I try to study some Chinese everyday.

I'd like to attend the program to escape my routine, discover a new lifestyle and culture, make new friends and immerse myself in a new language and school system. I'd also like to take this opportunity to try new activities, foods, hobbies, interests, studies etc.

I believe the host family should choose me because (I think) I have good adaptability skills, get on easily with any sort of people, am extroverted (to a certain degree) and sociable. I hope I can bring happiness to this family and insights on my culture if they're interested. I hope I can learn to live far from home, bear unexpected changes in my lifestyle and learn Swedish. I also hope I can make friends in my host country.

I am looking forward to my time in Sweden!
Sincerely
Pietro
