Hi! My name is Bonnie and I'm so excited (and definitely a little nervous in the best way) to be writing to you and eventually meet you. I can't wait to become a part of your family, even for a little while, and experience life from a new perspective.

I come from a family of five—my mum, dad, older sister Scarlett, older brother Sasha, and our dog, Molly.

My days are usually busy. I go to school during the day, and most afternoons are filled with soccer training. I'm a goalkeeper, and I train about four times a week. I love being on the field, being part of a team, and the challenge of constantly trying to improve. Soccer has taught me a lot about discipline, resilience, and communication, and helps in other parts of my life too.

When I'm not at school or training, I'll usually be with friends or listening to music. Music is a huge part of who I am—I love so many different genres, and I play a bit of bass guitar as well. There's just something about music that helps me connect with people and places. I also really enjoy just hanging out with friends or family, doing something meaningful, whether that's a good conversation or a spontaneous adventure.

People often describe me as funny, caring, and observant. I'm someone who notices the small things, and I try to be thoughtful and kind in the way I treat others. I love learning about different cultures and ways of life, and I'm genuinely curious about how people live in other parts of the world.

I want to be part of this exchange program because I'm looking for something that challenges and expands me. I'm excited to experience "differentness"—a new language, new traditions, new routines. I want to learn not just from school, but from real, everyday life in another country. And more than anything, I want to build real connections—with people who might start as strangers but could end up feeling like family.

As a guest in your home, I'll bring my energy, openness, and genuine willingness to learn. I'm happy to share my culture, cook you something from back home, teach you about the music I love, or show you how I play soccer in my country. I hope to give back in any way I can and become someone you enjoy having around.

Thank you so much for considering opening your home to me. I can't wait to meet you, learn from you, and hopefully become a part of your lives—even if just for a little while.

Warm wishes,
Bonnie
