Dear host family,

I am grateful that you are letting me live with you. In order to let you know me a little better I am writing you this application letter. As to my strengths I can tell you, that I am pretty good at thinking logically. That is why I am good at maths and physics. Also, I really like trying out new activities.

For me, activities must be fun, and it is more important for me to be part of it than to be good at it. As a weakness of mine I am sometimes scared to do things wrong, which can lead to me not doing them at all, but it is something I can get over.

Another weakness I am naming is that I sometimes lack self-confidence, which makes it difficult for me to write about my strengths, but here they are: I am a good listener, I am patient, I am interested in my dialogue partners, I am open-minded and normally accept others' suggestions. On to my interests. As I said earlier, I am good at logical thinking, and therefore I also like logical puzzles, for example difficult math exercises. Also, I play tennis and table tennis in my free time, and I have been playing the accordion for a few months by time of writing this (March 2025). Other interests of mine are music, which is the reason I started playing the accordion. On top of that I am interested in games of any type, that includes both video games and board games, I like playing games involving strategy, for example chess, but for video games I don't mind an RPG occasionally.

And of course, the last part, why I want to go to Sweden for a year:

As Swedish is my second mother tongue, I had the idea to do a student exchange, to improve my Swedish skills, but I'm also interested in learning more about Swedish culture, and how people live, and lastly, I also want to make myself more comfortable with talking to strangers. So, I hope I could give you a good impression of my personality, and that you like it of course. A gain, I am very thankful that you are accepting me as another family member for a year.

Best regards,

Sören
